

MEDIA COVERAGE ON KILLER ROBOTS

10 July– 25 August 2015

The open letter issued by artificial intelligence and robots researchers calling for a ban on autonomous weapons was presented at the Joint Conference on Artificial Intelligence in Buenos Aires on 28 July 2015 and generated huge media coverage throughout the US and internationally. Much attention focused on prominent signatories including Elon Musk, Stephen Hawking, Steve Wozniak, Noam Chomsky, Jaan Tallinn, and Max Tegmark, while a web post by the Campaign to Stop Killer Robots identified some of the prominent female signatories.

Human Rights Watch intern Robert Pattillo has compiled the following list of 1,821 articles generated by the artificial intelligence call to ban autonomous weapons. In terms of languages covered, he found 594 articles in English language media outlets, 326 in Spanish, 180 in French, 152 in Russian, 123 in Chinese (Mandarin), 66 in German, 48 in Korean, 37 in Dutch, 34 in Turkish, 27 in Greek, 26 in Arabic, 22 in Portuguese, 22 in Romanian, 20 in Polish, 19 in Indonesian Bahasa, 16 in Japanese, 14 in Bulgarian, 13 in Ukrainian, 14 in Italian, 9 in Hungarian, 6 in Croatian, 6 in Vietnamese, 5 in Czech, 5 in Slovak, 4 in Estonian, 3 in Danish, 3 in Norwegian, 3 in Latvian, 3 in Serbian, 3 in Slovenian, 2 in Azerbaijani, 2 in Mongolian, 2 in Finnish, 2 in Hebrew, 2 in Thai, 2 in Urdu, 2 in Farsi, and one article each in Afrikaans, Catalan, Lithuanian, and Somali.

A substantial number of media outlets published variations of AP or AFP wire stories on the letter. Most major print media covered the open letter, while there was coverage on National Public Radio and BBC, and in some broadcast television outlets. The Conversation, Defense One, and IEEE Spectrum published multiple stories in favor and opposing the call for a ban.

Much of the media coverage cited the Campaign to Stop Killer Robots and its member organizations. Some mentioned the precedent provided by the CCW protocol banning blinding lasers. Others linked the issue to the 70th anniversary of the dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.
